Egypt Breaks Treaty With the British

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO (AP) — Egypt has formally ended the 1954 treaty that gave Britain the right to station troops in the Suez Canal zone in the event of Soviet aggression in the Middle East.

A decree signed by President Nasser said the pact was broken "from the moment the British armed forces attacked Egypt."

In effect the treaty was written off when British and French planes bombed Egypt Oct. 31 in preparation for the invasion of the Suez Canal zone. The next day the Egyptian army seized the five big British supply bases maintained under the treaty, jailed their British civilian caretakers and confiscated the stores of arms and equipment.

Nasser's action takes away the right of British troops to return in case of attack by an "outside power" — mutually understood to mean Russia — on Turkey or any of the Arab nations of the Middle East. Loss of the British bases at the strategic crossroads between East and West may be a heavy blow to Western defense planning. The pact had five years to run.

At the canal, work to clear the wrecks and debris blocking shipment of oil and other necessities from Asia to Western Europe finally got full swing under U.N. auspices.

Two U.N.-chartered salvage vessels — the Italian tug Hercules and the Swedish ship Herakle — began clearing away wreckage at Kilometer 39 in the northern half of the water way.

The world's biggest salvage vessel — West Germany's Energie and Ausdauer — tied up at the wrecked Fardon bridge, 51 miles south of Port Said, one of the largest obstructions in the canal. Two German tugs and the Italian floating winch Squalo arrived with the Energie and Ausdauer, ready to begin work on the collapsed bridge.

Italian diver Bruno Sontina went down to examine the damage underwater, and when tied wire cables from the bridges to the salvage vessels.

Israel, official quarters denied reports from Cairo that the U.N. is putting on pressure for a speedup of the Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip. Egypt is restive over what it calls the "unjustifiable slow" Israeli pullback, slated to take several more weeks.

Informal political circles in Jerusalem said there has been no decision yet about the future of the Gaza Strip, which Israel has said it will not relinquish to Egypt.

Many Israelis also are demanding that Israel hold onto the coastal stretch of the Sinai Peninsula from Eilat to Sharm El-Sheikh until Egypt guarantees freedom of Israeli shipping in the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba. The coastal strip overlooks the gulf, and in its past Egyptian shore batteries have prevented the Israelis from using Eilat, their port on the gulf.

Col. Salah Gohar, head of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry's Palestine department, left for New York to join Egypt's U.N. delegation in an effort to get further commitments on a speedier Israeli withdrawal.

Egypt's denunciation of the Suez treaty apparently caught Britain by surprise even though it only formalized a situation that had existed since the beginning of the British-French attack. The British Foreign Office said it had not been notified of the action.

New Officials Are Sworn in

F Riot in Hungary Ched by Red Police

Smudge in Ad Here

By CHARLES W. RIDLEY

VIENNA, (UP) Hungarian police and militia crushed a flash riot against Communist strongarm methods today by driving their trucks into a shouting, jeering crowd of 2,000 shoppers in Budapest.

The demonstration began in front of a state-run department store which opened its door for the first time since the Hungarian rebellion started in October. It was broken up by powerful police and militia forces within half hour.

Police used their clubs, but not their guns. The initial group of policemen on the scene was unable to cope with the anger of the crowd. But when reinforcements arrived, they drove their trucks straight into the ranks of the system and took steps to obtain right of way quickly.

No serious injuries were reported.

United Press Staff Correspondent Jack Meehan reported that he was standing in the street near the scene in Budapest when the Hungarians' still-smouldering hatred of the police erupted into open insult, shouting and jeering that culminated in the demonstration.

Government announcements in the press and over radio Budapest had drawn some 1,500 persons to the Magyar Divatcsarnok, a famous department store which had been destroyed during the revolt and whose goods had been transferred to the shop which opened today.

Strong police and militia forces stood with their Tommy guns shouldered and watched the happy, jostling line of shoppers which snaked for two blocks along Andrássy street and coiled around a corner.

A group at the head of the shoppers' line was let into the store at 12:55 p.m. (5:55 a.m. EST).

The long line of shoppers surged forward with more jostling. Nervous police at the head of the line clutched their weapons in front of their chests and tried to shove back the crowd.

This action apparently changed the good-natured mood into one of anger. Within a matter of seconds, the crowd became a shouting, jeering mass.

Roberts led by 207 votes in the count of ballots cast at the polling places.

When the absentee ballots put Del Sesto in the lead, Roberts brought action before the court that some ballots were mailed by absentees and shut-in voters before the Nov. 6 election day.

In its 3-1 decision, the court said:

"The majority of the court has agreed that, even assuming by extreme liberality there was in existence a valid statute giving the board of elections the right to count absentees and shut-in voters, so-called, such statute cannot constitutionally and legally be extended to authorize such civilian absentees and shut-in voters to cast their ballots on any day than election day, Nov. 6."

The high mark of 407 was established during a four-day period at the end of 1952 and the start of 1953.

Delayed reports Wednesday for the New Year period that began at 6 p.m. local time, Friday and ended last midnight raised the toll to 407 deaths in traffic. There also were 71 deaths in fires and 109 in accidents of other kinds for an overall total of 587.

The National Safety Council, which had predicted 490 traffic fatalities during the New Year celebration, stated:

"Drivers and law enforcement officers teamed up to make our preholiday estimate of 490 traffic deaths over the holiday period very high. Our thanks and congratulations to them for proving us wrong."

"We appeal to every driver and every enforcement agency to make his encouraging achievement a guidepost through 1957. If we can do it for four days we can do it for 365."

The New Year traffic toll fell far under the total of 706 during the Christmas period a record for any holiday period.

Per Have Presley Burns Than Beards

NEW YORK — The Elvis Presley have become badge of honor among rock 'n' roll crooners.

It's worse. What if they're too rough to grow hair — or honest beard.

Mad-blooded, clean-shaven rage against the Preoburns forget the hairless own youth.

His grandpa will just thump the family album to himself, when he was young, "eatenke."

"What he was to them" and Rudolph Valentino — remember his sideburns — was to the youngsters in the 1920s. Elvis Presley is to the rock 'n' roll crowd today.

"What'll happen? Why, they'll grow to see how great young men are," says Shultzler, a tall, scholarly-looking scientist bristles like a par-sonalty as anyone in America.

Shultzler, vice president in charge of research for the Gillette safety razor, has made a lifelong study of man's relations to his whiskers through the ages. Here is what he has to say about the new juvenile rage for sideburns.

"They apparently come into vogue during periods of unrest and especially in postwar eras."

"This whisker trim was named after Gen. Ambrose Burnside, a Civil War officer, whose colorful sideburns set a fad among young Union soldiers."

17 States Supply Super Road Route

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arkansas and 17 other states have supplied detailed locations for more than half the mileage of the new interstate highway system.

Federal Highway Administrator John A. Volpe said yesterday the 18 states and the District of Columbia had determined the exact location of more than 75 per cent of their portion of the 40,000-mile expressway system.

Besides Arkansas, states reporting the information included Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Vermont.

Police used their clubs, but not their guns. The initial group of policemen on the scene was unable to cope with the anger of the crowd. But when reinforcements arrived, they drove their trucks straight into the ranks of the system and took steps to obtain right of way quickly.

After Congress approved the highway bill last June, the Bureau of Public Roads urged all 48 states to settle the detailed location of the system and take steps to obtain right of way quickly.

At a two-hour party caucus preliminary to formal convening of the 85th Congress tomorrow, the Democrats chose Sam Rayburn of Texas as speaker and John W. McCormack of Massachusetts as majority leader. They remained Ralph Roberts of Indiana as chief clerk, Williams Miller of Mississippi as doorkeeper, Zeke Johnson of Pennsylvania as sergeant-at-arms and H. H. Morris of Kentucky as postmaster.

The caucus choices will be formally ratified tomorrow by the Democratic House majority.

Rep. Melvin Price of Illinois was elected caucus chairman to succeed Rep. John Rooney of New York, who declined re-election.

A threatened move to deny Democratic congressional leaders today indicated they will go along with President Eisenhower's proposal to use money and troops, if necessary, to stop Russian penetration of the Middle East.

But they made clear they will first subject the plan to long cold study and that it will not clear congress with the same ease as did the blank-cheek authority which Congress granted Mr. Eisenhower two years ago for defending Formosa.

Democrats also expressed resentment that the new "Eisenhower Doctrine" for shelling the Middle East from communism was "leaked" to the press before they were consulted about it.

They received their first official word of the plan yesterday during a four-hour conference with the President at the White House.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York Negro, didn't develop.

Powell supported President Eisenhower in the 1956 campaign.

Neither was there any mention in the caucus of Rep. Williams (D-Miss.), who also deserted the Stevenson ticket.

Williams said he was invited to the White House with both Republican and Democratic congressional leaders to discuss foreign policy matters which he will lay before the new Congress.

The President told the Congressional leaders, according to a White House statement, that the Middle East is "a vitally important area." He asked that "Congress join with him in serving notice to the world that the United States would resist any Communist aggression in that area."

The President told the Congressional leaders specifically asked, the statement said, for prompt action by Congress on a resolution "designed to deter" Russian penetration of the Middle East.

An "enlarged program of economic aid" to bolster Middle Eastern nations.

Mr. Eisenhower promised to spell out his proposal in greater detail in a special message on the Middle East which he will send to Congress shortly after it convenes at noon tomorrow.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he did not know whether Mr. Eisenhower would go before Congress in person to submit the message.

Even before that, Eisenhower will send or deliver to Congress a special message asking standby power to use American military might if necessary to curb Communist intrusions in the Middle East.

Outlined yesterday to congressional leaders of both parties, the plan calls also for broader economic aid to the area, in the expected amount of 400 million dollars for a two-year period.

The House caucus choices will be formally elected when the House convenes tomorrow at the call of its clerk, Ralph Roberts.

While awaiting committee assignments recommendations, Congress will mark time and receive President Eisenhower's legislative proposals.

The chief executive's major message on the State of the Union will be delivered in person Jan. 10.

Even before that, Eisenhower will send or deliver to Congress a special message asking standby power to use American military might if necessary to curb Communist intrusions in the Middle East.

When the girls had been outside long enough to be seen eating, the door opened again. A small boy was followed by the three previous visitors and an extra girl.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the actual wording of the message still was a matter for discussion by the President, his staff and department heads.

Democrats, while indicating general approval of the new "Eisenhower Doctrine," made it clear they will subject it to close scrutiny and not give it the speedy approval they did the President's blank-check authority to use force in the Formosa area.

State Trooper Guy Downing who investigated the accident along with Nevada County Sheriff Horace Hale, said Bins was going east on Highway 4 and drove through a stop sign at the intersection and collided with the truck, owned by Nevada County and driven by Leeland Taylor of Prescott. Taylor was not injured.

The body was taken to Hicks Funeral Home here where it will remain pending arrangements.

Only Part of New Policy Different

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration's State Department has been doing a selling job on what has been described as a new program for the Middle East, although only part of it could be considered basically new.

The department, headed by Secretary Dulles, has been getting headlines since Friday by a carefully worded formula if necessary to stop Soviet military aggression in the Middle East. This could be considered basically new for that area, although similar action respecting Formosa was taken two years ago.

This served a double purpose: preparing public and congressional opinion before President Eisenhower made any announcement;

"I believe what we are doing in the way of foreign aid to the Middle East is of incomparably greater significance than these tentative proposals the Soviets are making."

This was after the Russian leaders — Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Khrushchev — had visited Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia and Prime Minister Nehru India and promised economic help to South Asia and the Middle East.

But Dulles said this country was not going to be drawn into an attempt to match every offer of economic aid the Soviets may make to the Middle East or Asia. Not long afterwards he must have started getting second thoughts. On Dec. 20, 1955, he made it known the administration wanted to step up its aid to the Middle East, although he said "we need not become panicky" because of Russia's promises.

Attention is called to the fact that the rates of pay for laborers and mechanics engaged in the construction of the project will be not less than the minimum prevailing local wage rates for similar work, as determined by the Arkansas State Department of Labor in accordance with Act 115 of the Sixtieth General Assembly.

pine with statistics on whiskers. He believes that his firm is the only corporation in America that encourages its employees to come to work unshaven—and whack off their whiskers on company time, so they can be used to test company products. About 20 per cent of the employees take him up on the offer.

Here are a few things Shnitzler says is known about the 50 million American men who shave daily:

Each has about 30,000 hairs in his beard which grow a 50th of an inch every 24 hours. This means, he figures, that U.S. men grow about 500,000 miles of beard every day.

In all this were one whisker it would reach to the moon and back and if it were rolled into a single ball it would weigh 25,000 pounds.

Furthermore, if all the growth in just one man's 30,000 whiskers were confined to a single hair it would shoot up 42 feet in a day.

Naturally a fellow can't tell one whisker to grow and the others not to. But why couldn't all the hermits who are mad at life simply lie down and let their beards grow out and strange civilization?

Because, fortunately, their beards would grow only to a length of about 18 inches, then stop.

A whisker grows that long in about three years when it reaches maturity, dies and falls out," explained Shnitzler, "and another whisker starts growing to replace it."

Nature thinks of everything. Other whisker lore:

A dry male whisker is about as tough as a copper wire. Color isn't as sure a sign of toughness as age.

Why don't men use chemicals to remove their beards the same as women do epilatories on their legs? Their faces are too sensitive for daily use of such preparations.

How much times does a man spend shaving? If he devotes five minutes a day to it five times a week between the time he's 20 and 60 he'll put in about 109 eight-hour days removing his facial foliage.

And women complain men now do anything for them!

Arkansas' death rate is below the national average — only four other states have a lower death rate than Arkansas.

DOROTHY DIX

You Had Your Chance; Leave Ex-Beau Alone

Dear Dorothy Dix: Randy and I dated last year, but in June we had an argument and broke up. We never spoke to each other until we met accidentally in a drugstore last week. We had a friendly conversation in the course of which he told me he is engaged.

Return the engagement ring, which I suspect was the attraction in the first place.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My fiance is just out of service and as yet has no job. I want to get married right away but he insists on waiting until he's settled. He's so jealous of me he doesn't want me to work anywhere. If I worked, we could, I am sure, get married right away. How can I convince him?

Dear Vivian: Not without violating every code of decency and sportsmanship. You had your chance and missed it; forget any predatory ideas. Once a couple is engaged, it's hands off to trespassers.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Eddie and I plan to become engaged in the near future but we won't be married until he finishes service. I have no hope chest and Mother thinks Eddie should buy one for me. Friends all say mother should give it to me. Who is right?

Dear Edna: It really doesn't matter who buys the hope chest; you should even buy it yourself. In fact, you really don't need one at all. Any box or dresser will do to hold the household linens you accumulate, and a hope chest may not fit into your future home.

Dear Dorothy Dix: At 16, I'm engaged to a boy I've known six months. He's a nice boy, and no one objects to the engagement, but the problem is my girl friend is out having a good time with three or four dates, and I wonder if I am too young to be engaged. I like my boy friend but want to have more fun.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I would advise break-

THE STORY: Tow more complications have entered the life of Dr. Alex Ward. His sister has been with an Army captain in Germany. Dr. Matt Knapp who has been in the Army has returned to the hospital but doesn't do very much work on the hospital staff.

XV

The next night, when Alex came home, he said he was afraid he had a cold; he thought he'd go straight to bed.

He was comfortably established with the evening paper ready to doze off, when the phone rang again. He groaned, and Cass got up quickly to answer it. "This is Dr. Ward's wife," she waited. "I see, will you call Medical Service and see who tonight's pool doctor is?"

Alex was reaching for the phone and she stepped the length of the cord away from the bed and his hand. "Well you try to get him, Yes, Dr. Ward is at home. Try to get the pool doctor, first, if you please!"

She set the phone down her face stubborn.

A man at the Junction filling station. There's been some sort of accident."

Alex watched her, his eyes bright. "It's probably a question of whether I should start dressing now, and take my time, or wait till the guy calls back."

"You're a Staff doctor at House Springs Hospital. You're not in private practice."

Alex threw back the blanket. "Alex, you're not going—"

"Of course I'm going. When they phone back, tell them to bring the child to the Springs. By ambulance. These kids can get frightfully smashed up, Cass, when they fall out of a moving car."

"Why can't the pool doctor..."

"Because," called Alex from the bathroom, "the pool doctor tonight happens to be Matt."

The child had been lifted into the ambulance, he was carried thus into the hospital and to the receiving room—such as they had at the Springs, where no elaborate provisions were made for emergency accidents. The boy was hurt about the head; he had abrasions and cuts, and was in a coma. He was 10 years old, his frightened parents told Alex.

"I'm glad you didn't move him more than was necessary," said Alex, rolling back one of the boy's eyelids.

"There was a young woman there—a nurse, I suppose. She told us not to move Johny."

Alex was taking the boy's blood pressure; he'd had a nasty blow on the back of his head—blood clotted his light hair—pressure was 160 over 100.

Cass had said that Lenoir Black. "Oh, she's no nurse," he told the parents.

"Well, she talked and acted like one. Told us to keep the kid quiet and warm—not to try to get him to talk—but she wouldn't come with us."

He told the nurse to take the parents to the waiting room.

A few minutes later he rejoined them. He wanted them to sign a release for surgery.

"Will no she, Doctor?" asked the mother.

"I hope I can prevent that, Mrs. Bressie. But time is very important—"

"Oh, yes! And please do all you

U.S. Navy Ship Crushed by Giant Iceflows

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (UPI) — The U.S. Navy cargo ship Arneb, water pouring in through her damaged plates and her propeller broken, lay helpless today in the grip of two giant iceflows. Standing nearby in the icepack but unable to aid her was the icebreaker Northwind.

Patrolman Frank Lovoi, shot Frank Jones 24, in the back. He was rushed to Charity Hospital, where his condition was reported serious.

Bus Driver Lloyd Alexander, 56, Jones first threatened him with a knife, then threw the signs out of the bus and demanded the driver's coat change. The Negro was quoted as saying "as long as we're at it, you might as well beers and men aboard was on its way to land supplies for the joint U.S.-New Zealand International Geophysical year base 500 miles north of McMurdo Sound.

The Coast Guard icebreaker escort Northwind radioed that the massive icefield, estimated to cover 200 square miles, had reduced its own operational ability and so far it was unable to maneuver to free the Arneb or relieve the pressure on her.

The message said all pumps from both ships were in constant use trying to control flooding aboard the Arneb. The cargo ship's crew was trying to move cargo from the number two hold in order to repair damage to the hull.

The Northwind said the ice floes extended 60 miles out to sea and as far up and down the coast as a reconnaissance helicopter could see.

Officer Shoots Negro on New Orleans Bus

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Two patrolmen in another bus got off quickly and stopped Jones as he tried to escape from the bus.

Patrolman Frank Lovoi, shot Jones twice at Patrolman Lawrence Bayer, but missed. Lovoi said he knocked Jones down with a blow on the head with his revolver.

Lovoi said he shot Jones in the confusion of the fighting.

At Charity Hospital, Jones denied that he had a knife.

But police said they had a four-inch knife at headquarters that Jones had thrown in the street as he left the bus crowded with early morning workers.

Ponies Rated Sure to Down Baylor

By The Associated Press
The mighty Southern Methodist Mustangs, ranked fourth among the nation's collegiate basketball teams, opens conference play against faltering Baylor at Dallas tonight.

The Ponies, who captured the loop's pre-season tournament at Houston, have a 10-1 record so far in preliminary games. Baylor, on the other hand, has won three and dropped eight.

Defending Champs Find Going Tough

By TOM DYGARD
Of The Associated Press

How are things with the defending champions of Arkansas high school basketball?

Not so rosy as they were last year, says Bob Bradbury who coached Jonesboro to the 1956 state Class A basketball crown in his first season at the helm.

"We don't have the height or the experience we had last year," Bradbury said. "Last year, we could start a game with five boys who stood over six feet and now we can't do better than start two boys over six feet."

Only five of the 15 boys on his 12-man squad are seniors, and not all of the seniors played varsity ball last season.

The Golden Hurricane, which wrapped up the crown with a victory over Little Rock Central in the final round of the state tournament, won four of its first six games this season. The losses were to Little Rock and North Little Rock, the No. 1 and No. 2 teams, respectively, in the Big Eight pre-season tournament.

Now the Golden Hurricane is engaged in the Northeast Arkansas Tournament, a tough test against the best teams in a section of the state that parentally produces the most potent high school basketball teams.

Gone is Tommy Rankin, a dead-eye little guy who could be counted on for a score or more points to provide the difference for Jonesboro. In haven't really got anyone who looks like the will be outstanding in game after game," Bradbury said. "In our first two games it was Vowell (Don Vowell, a junior center) who looked the best. In the next two it was Pickens (Dickie Pickens, a junior guard), and in our last two it was Arrington (Bill Arrington), a senior forward who played with the B team last year."

Pickens averaged 14 points a game in the Hurricane's first six games. Vowell averaged 11 and Arrington 10.

Defending champions always stand as everybody's target and Bradbury, in his second year as basketball coach at Jonesboro, is finding his team in that role.

"I know the Little Rock and North Little Rock players saw us as the champions and wanted to beat the champions," Bradbury said. "And I believe the Pine Bluff players felt the same way."

Jonesboro fell to North Little Rock 67-50 and took a 55-55 licking at the hands of Little Rock. Then they nipped Pine Bluff's Zebras 51-49.

Being somebody's target is old hat to Jonesboro basketball players, though.

"In our section of the state," Bradbury said, "everybody guns for us. It's a big night for a team that plays Jonesboro. They like to beat us."

The two teams that Bradbury sees as the most dangerous threats to Jonesboro's prominence in northeast Arkansas Basketball this season are rival Leachville and Manila — are yet to come.

"We'll meet them in the Northeast Arkansas Tournament — if we get that far," he said.

Jonesboro, whether it wins or loses this season, may be the last team for a while that can call itself the state champion.

The Big Eight, the league of Arkansas' larger high schools, pulled out of the state Class A tournament. It held its own pre-season tournament and will call the season quits at the end of its round-robin schedule.

The Class A crown in recent years stood well as the overall state championship since many of the better Class B teams competed in the Class A tournament.

But it is difficult to see anybody claiming a flat state championship when the Big Eight was nowhere to be found in the tournament.

Fullmer Favored to Take Crown From Robinson

By JACK GUDDY V
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sugar Ray Robinson, 35, risks his middle-weight crown at Madison Square Garden tonight against brawny young Gene Fullmer, the most dangerous opponent since the master came out of retirement.

Stocky, bull-necked Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, is a slight favorite at 13-10 because of his youthful headlong aggressiveness and because he never was stopped in 40 fights.

However, increasing support for the once-great champion may send them into the ring at even money for their age-vs.youth battle.

Their 15-rounders will be televised and broadcast nationally by ABC at 9 p.m. (EST), with TV blackouts in the New York and Philadelphia areas.

Vols' Extend Cage String to 8 Wins

By DON WEIS S
Of The Associated Press

If it's any consolation to Tennessee after that Sugar Bowl one, the "Volunteers" athletic teams kept the winning combination on New Year's Day.

The basketball team ran its unbeaten streak to eight last night by defeating William and Mary 81-87. The 12th-ranked Vols got 58 points from Herman Thompson, Dick Keller and Leon Armerman. Thompson was the leader in 28.

Georgia, another Southeastern Conference member, continued to show an improvement which began in the Gator Bowl Tournament at Jacksonville last week, won by the Bulldogs over favored South Carolina. Georgia's fourth straight was a 72-68 decision, over Florida State.

The All-American City Tournament at Owensboro, Ky., would open a four-day run with host Kentucky Wesleyan winning the title, 91-46 over outgunned New Mexico A&M.

In Durham, N. H., Amherst defeated Bowdoin 77-68 and New Hampshire edged Trinity, Conn., 74-73 to reach the finals of the New Hampshire Invitational. Another tourney, the last big one of 50 or more conducted during the Holidays, opens tonight at Mobile. It's the Senior Bowl, with Furman, Morehead Ky., Florida State and Spring Hill, Ala., entered.

All America football end Ron Kramer scored 20 points although he fouled out with 11 minutes remaining in Michigan's 75-victory over Yale yesterday.

Princeton suffered its third defeat in a row to Big Ten talent 84-88 Ohio State.

Butler, with Ted Guzek scoring 32 points, came from 11 points behind at halftime to edge Denver 76-69. Memphis State had four players in double figures in thrashing Arizona 93-76.

Being somebody's target is old hat to Jonesboro basketball players, though.

"In our section of the state," Bradbury said, "everybody guns for us. It's a big night for a team that plays Jonesboro. They like to beat us."

The two teams that Bradbury sees as the most dangerous threats to Jonesboro's prominence in northeast Arkansas Basketball this season are rival Leachville and Manila — are yet to come.

"We'll meet them in the Northeast Arkansas Tournament — if we get that far," he said.

Jonesboro, whether it wins or loses this season, may be the last team for a while that can call itself the state champion.

"Poor Tony went through hell in our first years in Hollywood," said Deborah, a woman of refreshing frankness. "In the first place, he was on a visitor's visa during his first three years here and he couldn't do any work.

"In the second place, he was married to an actress of some prominence, and that is tough on any man. And thirdly, he was known as an RAF hero. That's a terrible burden to carry; people think you are good for nothing else."

Their marriage faced further stress because Deborah had to be absent on long and arduous locations — to Africa for "King Solomon's Mines" and to Rome for "Quo Vadis." Just before Christmas, she returned from another three-month location — for "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison" in the West Indies.

But said the actress, absence does make the heart grow fonder. "And what a wonderful thing success is for a man!" she added.

Tony has found success as a TV producer having created series in Africa and England. Though his business keeps him away a great deal, Deborah doesn't seem to mind.

"We average about six months a year together," she said. "That sounds tough, but it isn't really. Think of how many women there are in this country who see their husbands even less — men who sell shirts and stockings and underwear and go forth on the road."

President Theodore Roosevelt was an ardent bird watcher, and recorded seven different varieties of bids that made the White House a regular point to visit.
